

Kent Wahlbeck (Norway)

Kent Wahlbeck is an autodidact artist born 1950 and living in Uppsala, Sweden.

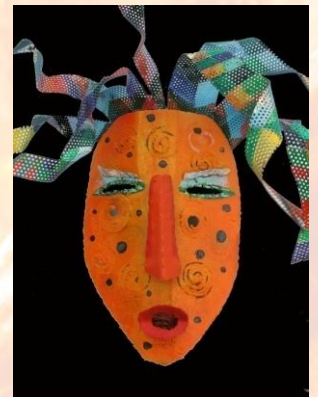

He is an adventurer who constantly explores the expressional possibilities and he is not afraid of pushing the boundaries or to go outside the box.

It can be on canvas within the actions of drawing lines and combining strokes of paint that may end up in colorful manifestation of love and lust for life and art.

The use of drawings and photos in digital collage becomes unique silk screen monoprints or small editions of serigraphy. His works are crowded of humans, beasts and symbols.

His masks in iron are sometimes big and in public places, sometimes used in different performances. Medium size masks are often painted and somehow objects representing the sacred and embody the spirits.

Kent Wahlbeck is creating a world of his own, restless telling his story about life and art.
